The Indonesian Petroleum Association (IPA) Annual Conventions have highlighted the achievements and challenges of Indonesia's oil and gas industry since 1972. The IPA Convention & Exhibition provides an important forum for exchanging knowledge and ideas through interaction among scientists, engineers, government officials, academics, and other professionals. The contributions of PSC contractors, service companies, suppliers, universities, and research institutes have been vital to the success of the Convention & Exhibition.

The IPA has published convention proceedings since its inception. The archive of over 1,500 technical papers constitutes the principal reference for the oil and gas industry in Southeast Asia. The 34th Annual Convention strives to continue this tradition with a strong Technical Program of oral and poster papers. The Proceedings Volume will be provided to all participants in CD-ROM format. Hardcopies will be available for order.

CALL FOR PAPERS

The Thirty-fourth Annual IPA Convention & Exhibition will be held in the Jakarta Convention Center 18th - 20th May 2010. The Technical Program Committee is issuing this formal CALL FOR PAPERS to solicit potential papers and posters suitable for the Technical Program of the convention.

The Technical Program Committee is committed to delivering a strong program of papers and posters to help ensure the IPA Convention & Exhibition continues to be a well attended, prestigious event. We seek your assistance and commitment to encourage your staff to contribute to the program by preparing papers and posters. The deadline for submission of abstracts is 30 November 2009. Although short notice, we remind prospective authors that the committee evaluates the abstract to determine whether the topic will be informative and interesting to our audience. Refinement and corporate approvals can be completed during the preparation of the full manuscript as well as during the editing process that occurs after the paper is accepted.

Abstracts will be judged on technical merit, originality and interest to the audience. We are targeting approximately 90 papers (65 oral presentations, 25 posters) from all aspects of the petroleum industry.

Papers to be presented orally will be expected to provide a full written paper for publication in the Proceedings volume. Authors of posters can choose to provide either a full paper or extended abstract for publication in the Proceedings volume.

Your continued support is critical to the success of the IPA Convention & Exhibition. Please take an active role by ensuring the widest possible exposure of this CALL FOR PAPERS within your company as well as encouraging and supporting the people in your organisation to participate in this event.
